Extra Telegraph.

Feeling that a crisis has arrived—when it becomes the duty of every friend of his country to offer up his prejudices and his personal interests, so far as they are in conflict with the great end of redeeming the Government from the misrule which threatens the overflow of the best interests of society, and believing that the establishment of some organ of communication, through which the advocates of constitutional law can address the public intelligence at a price within the reach of every citizen, is essential to its accomplishments, the subscriber proposes to publish a semi-monthly

EXTRA UNITED STATES TELEGRAPH.

To consist of sixteen large octavo pages, at the reduced rate of one dollar and fifty cents per annum, for a single copy.

It is intended to constitute a medium through which the ablest pens may address the people, and all such are invited to contribute. It is especially recommended to the consideration of the State Rights Societies now springing up in every State of the Union; and will embody the leading facts, documents and arguments, upon which the success of the principles which give them life, depend, In a word, its great end will be to harmonise conflicting opinions, and by promoting a surrender of political prejudice and personal interests unite those who disapprove of the manner in which the Government i now administered in a common effort to rescue the institutions of the country from the destiny which, in the opinion of all intelligent and distnterested persons, otherwise awaits us.

With a view to enable subsequent subscribers to obtain the whole series the first numbers will be stereotyped, and new editions issued as the subscriptions may be enlarged.

Editors with whom we exchange will do us a favor by noticing this proposition, and all persons who desire its success are requested to obtain subscribers

All subscriptions must be paid in advance.

The first number will issue as soon as five thousand subscribers are obtained.

Sudden Death.

Charles Baldwin, Esq. an eminent legal practitioner and a highly respectable citizen, was yesterday struck by the hand of death in a manner awfully sudden and impressive. He lodged at the city Hotel, and had just seated himself, without any indication of indisposition, at the large dinner table of that establishment, when on reaching out his hand to receive a plate that was handed to him. he fell back lifeless. The vital spark was, as if in the twinkling of an eye totally extinct.

N. Y. Cour.

The Jacksonians are dropping off like ripe pears. We can hear from no portion of the country where this is not the case. The Editor of the Susquehanna Pa. Register, who is an office holder under Gov. Wolf, can stand it no longer, but takes a manly stand against the misrule of the times. He says—any conductor of a Democratic print, who has not independence enough to condemn what he considers wrong in any administration, is a contemptible hireling, and unwosthy to be the conductor of a free press

SAFE METHOD OF EXTERMINATING RATS.

Let those who wish to poison rats—instead of applying to the chemist, intimately mix a pound of plaister of Paris, (in its unslacked state) with about double the quantity of oat meal Let them place this within the reach of the rats they will eat it greedily, and without being deterred by any bad taste.—Through the humidity contained in their stomachs the plaister of Paris will set and form an indigestible hard mass, which will in fact, present upon dissection, a good cast of the rats stomach, and produce a kind of Aldermanic death, i. e. by irremediable digestion.

POLITICAL.

Gold! Gold! Gold!

Of all the cants in this cant ing world the cant of the Globe is certainly most impudent. It cants about freedom, while it presents the crown to Caesar, it cants about state rights while it sustains the principles of the elder Adams it cants about purity, while it is in the receipt of thousands of tainted money, it cants about the corruption of the bank while it encourages the rottenness of the Post Office But of all its cants that about gold, is, the most ridiculous extravagant and impudent,

Mr. Blair must have a strange idea of the intelligence of the people. He tells them stories about Jackson's gold currency, which would startle the credulity of the nursery. The gorgeous fictions of the Arabian nights are far outdone. The people are told to believe that the president will by the experiment, discover the philosophers stone, manufacture a large quantity of gold, and distribute it among us people. Gold! Gold! Nothing but Gold! The farmer is told that the sweat which drops from his brow, will after Jackson's experiment, turn into eagles and half eagles This looks like a joke; but we assure the reader that these very words may be found in the Globe. It answers those who ask for the national treasure, by telling them that it is among the Gold mines of the Southern States! To the imploring millions who ask for relief, Mr. Blair and the president respond, that they will take away the rags and substitute oceans of gold. The poor man will never more be worn with toil; Jackson will supply him with gold! The pot-house politician will no longer be forced to run up a score at the ale-house, he will pay off every thing with Jacksons gold. In short, all will be plenty, comfort Jacksonism, and gold. But where is this political Eldorado? Where is Jackson to get this gold? never mind; replies the Globe; Jackson is the hero of two wars, the greatest and the best, down with the Bank, and hurrah for Old Hickory and a gold currency!

Knaves are generally too cunning to be wise, The Kitchen men overact their part. Though the people have betrayed a want of discernment in enduring for a moment; the presence of such men in the government, they have discovered their error, and are prepared to correct it. The day of retribution is at hand. Phil. Int.

CHEAP NEWSPAPER.

Weekly Courier and Enquirer, New-York.

ONE DOLLAR FOR SIX MONTHS—TWO DOLLARS PER ANNUM.

The Globe and the Argus, backed by the People's money and the immense patronage of a corrupt administration, with the entire control of the Public Officer as an agent, are making unprecedented exertions to extend the circulation of their Pensioned journals through every section of the country, in the desperate hope of poisoning the minds of the people by their systematic falsehoods and daily misrepresentations of the state of the country, Having at their command at least fifteen thousand Post Masters and the exclusive control of the mails, besides the franks of the most slavish Congress that ever disgraced our country, there is too much reason to apprehend that their efforts may not be without effect,

It is only by enlightening the People, and placing before them the truth and the real state of the country, that we may expect to arouse them to a full consciousness of the dangers which threaten their Liberties, and the outrages which have been openly practised upon the Laws and the Constitution of the country. And under these circumstances, it becomes the duty of all the friends of the Constitution, and more especially of the Whig Committees in every county and town in the United States, to aid in conveying correct information and sound principles to every man who has a voice in the approaching contest.

We have ever stood ready to aid to the extent of our humble abilities, in this good work; and have accordingly determined to reduce the price of our Weekly Courier and Enquirer to two dollars per annum, or one dollar for six months! When it is remembered that our weekly paper is of the same size our daily sheet, and contains all the matter published in that paper, it will be admitted that it is the cheapest paper in the world, and the extent of our sacrifice and risk may be estimated from the fact that this reduction extends to all our present subscribers, and that all who have paid since the 1st of June will be credited at the rate of two dollas per annum.

We annex the proceedings of the General Commitee of Young men on this subject, and have only to add, that we confidently rely upon our Whig friends throughout the U. States, aiding us in this measure. We flatter ourselves that where the paper has once been subscribed for, at this low rate, it will be found sufficiently interesting to insure a continuance of the subscription.

It is proper to add, that all payments must be made in ADVANCE, free of postage, and that this rule cannot be departed from under any circumstances.

At a meeting of the Young Men's General Committee on the 17th june 1834. the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, the Globe and the Argus, notorious engines of deception and vehicles of falsehood—the one sustained by the treasury of the nation, the other of the state—have issued proposals to reduce the price of their country edition to one dollar for six months, for the avowed purpose of placing those corrupting papers in the hands of every voter in the country;

And whereas, the Editor of the Courier & Enquirer, has consented to reduce the price of his weekly edition of that paper to a price corresponding with that of the Globe and Argus;

And whereas, it is incumbent on the WHIGS to make up by individual support for the want of government patronage;

Therefore resolved, that the Corresponding Committee be instructed to communicate to their correspondents throughout the State, the fact that the Editor of the Courier and Enquirer has reduced the subscription to his Weekly Paper to the low rate of ONE DOLLAR FOR SIX MONTHS, and to suggest to them the propriety and importance of extending its circulation as much as practicable.

ROBT C. WETMORE Chair,
W. S. Lawrence, Secretary.

Whig Editors with whom we exchange will do us a material service by noticing the foregoing arrangement and republishing the proceedings of the Committee.

All who take the paper are requested to use their influence in extending its circulation, and for the purpose of aiding them in forming classes, we agree to furnish eleven papers for six months for Ten Dollars, To Committees and others who may think proper to enclose Twenty Dollars postage paid twenty five copies will be forwarded during the next six months.

POETRY.

SATURDAY EVENING.

BY BULWER.

The week is past, the Sabbath dawn comes on,
Rest—rest in peace—thy daily toil is done:
And standing, as thou standest, on the brink
Of a new scene of being, calmly think
Of what is gone, is now, and soon shall be
As one that trembles on eternity.
For sure as this now closing week is past
So sure advancing Time will close my last,
Sure as to-morrow, shall this awful light
Of the eternal morning hail my sight.
Spirit of good! on this week's verge I stand,
Tracing the guiding influence of thy hand;
That hand which leads me gently, calmy still,
Up life's dark, stony, tiresome, thorny hill,
Thou, thou in every storm has sheltered me
Beneath the wing of thy benignity;
A thousand graves my footsteps circumvent,
And I exist—thy mercies' monument!
A thousand writhe upon the bed of pain
I live—and pleasure flows through every vain.
Want o'er a thousand wretches waves her wand;
I, circled by ten thousand mercies stand
How can I praise thee, Father! how express
My debt of reverence and of thankfulness!
A debt that no intelligence can count,
While every moment swells the vast amount,
For the week's duties thou hast given me strength
And brought me to its peaceful close at length
And here my grateful bosom fain would raise
A fresher memorial to thy glorious praise.

Our readers will probably recollect that Timothy Upham, some few years ago, gave Isaac Hill, a very genteel cowhiding, for which he had to pay one dollar. With this understanding they will be at no loss to appreciate the force of the following retort;

Mr. Clayton of Delaware, said in reply 'The member who has just finished reading his speech, alluding to a remark of mine made yesterday, in reference to the subject of the Post Office that I had three years ago, in vain endeavored to arrest the downward tendency of things, asked me what remedy I ever did or now do propose to attain that end. I suppose I am bound briefly to answer his inquiry, if it were only through courtesy. One of my remedies then Sir, would be this—I would commend to the Post Master General to enter into a contract with Timothy Upham, (if that gentleman would undertake the task for a liberal compensation) the 'service to be rendered' should be to keep in order these scurrilous libellers; who are making a trade of calumny, whether their mail contracts be with or without the newspaper privileges, and I would at all times suffer him to 'improve his bid' and pay him willingly, an 'extra allowance' of five hundred dollars for every chastisement he might inflict on such a libeller. That, Sir, would be one of my remedies; of its efficiency, the member may judge.'

WASHINGTON, June 21.

The Senate spent three or four hours yesterday, in the consideration of Exetive business,—principally, if not wholly it is understood, on the nomination of Mr. Stevenson, as Minister to England—He was rejected, 19 to 18.

MARRIAGE.

In Scotland, a youth of fourteen, whatever his rank or fortune may be, can throw himself away by merely asking a female, "Will you accept of me as a husband?" and she replying, 'Yes" The marriage is completed! This would be a dangerous provision where divorces are so easily procured as in New Jersey and Ohio.

SINCERITY.

I'll never consent, while I breathe, to treat a scoundrel with deference, at the expense of an honest man—to disappoint a friend—to spare the feelings of a fool, because he is a fool; and a stranger—an intruder. Now you are in earnest; now I'll believe you. That I am. I see friendship, love, common sense, and common honesty, sacrificed every hour to what is called politeness. I see women every day out of respect, as they say, to their husbands—tricked out with better dress, with better looks: and with better words—and with better humor to receive strangers, than to receive a husband; the rogues persuading the good, easy fool, when they give other men a cleaner table cloth, and a better dinner, that they do it out of love and respect for him! Abominable! they treat the lord of their affections, the partner of their bed, the father of their children, worse than any other man—they do indeed—there's no denying it. 'Tis all a wicked profligate, cold hearted lie, and they know it is. They call it hospitality—worse and worse. Hospitality is simple and sincere. No—they want to please a stranger—to deceive him, even for an hour; to appear better off in the world, richer and more comfortable than they really are. They are secretly tired of home—of that plain, quiet, comfortable, beautiful decency, which makes home so dear to a man. Such women are sure to be sluts, and hypocrites, just in proportion to the difference they make between their household and the world, the stranger and their husband. And they go slipshod about the house, their caps on one side, hair flying loose, and themselves fitter for a horse pond, than a marriage bed or a dinner table, till in mercy to their husbands: some stranger knocks at the door, 'Oh, but if you ask a man to dinner with you, you must give him something better than pork and beans.' Not if I eat pork and beans myself.—'But he'll be offended. Let him, He's a fool, if he expects to be treated at my own house, by my own wife, better than I myself am.' Sir, I can tell by looking at the plate of a man, exactly how he is esteemed by the woman at the head of the table. 'Of course, The higher she esteems him, and the more she loves the better he will be helped.' Exactly the reverse. The husband the best off; and if there be any particular, dear friend, who comes often, somebody to whom the family are under great obligation, you may know him by the drumsticks in his plate, the muddy cider, and the small claws of the lobster. But after all, if we cant be free and easy with our friends, with whom can we be so?' Free and easy? Codfish and potatoes. is that what you call free and easy?—Make your friend eat pudding and goose out of the same plate. But so it ever is; we always treat them worse who treat us best; a man will borrow money of his best friend to pay the rascal who put him in jail, and then let his friend whistle for the money, or come to downright quarrel with him him, if he should refuse to lend him any more, for the same purpose.

Cholera in Mobile.

The Huntsville Advocate of the 17th ult. says:—"The Cholera has again made its appearance. We are informed by a gentleman recently from Tuscaloosa, that it was creditably rumoured there that from twelve to fourteen persons were dying, daily in Mobile, from this disease, and that it was extending its ravages up the river and along the valley of the Tombeckbee. A letter has been received by a gentleman of this place, from his friend in Mobile, somewhat to the same effect,

The Hon. Richard Rush, has written a letter to some tory gentlemen in Vermont, on the subject of the Bank! The matter of the Post Office, is not mentioned.
