the lines of the veins, and the colour of the skin denoted that the state of collapse was fast approaching. The question then was, can a new action be produced in the intestinal canal? Yes I said, it is possible, and I will try that remedy which I have so strongly recommended to others in this disease. I took three drops of croton oil on a little sugar, and confidently waited the effects. The following took place in succession.—In 20 minutes the stomach was discharged of an immense quantity of undigested food, the liver, which had been distended to a most painful degree with bile, poured its contents into the intestines, the gruelly discharges from the bowels was now succeeded by copious evacuations of bile and offensive matter, the cramps ceased, and the pulse rose. All those favourable occurrences took place in less than an hour after taking the croton oil, and I pronounced myself out of danger. This is my case, and I hope and trust it may prove an important one to the public, as it may lead to a more successful mode of treatment than has hitherto been employed in the fatal disease.

From the Philadelphia Whig

The Jackson men made a most piteous appeal to their friends on Monday. They had an immense hand bill posted on the corners, in which they besought the vetoites to attend the meeting to be held in the evening, or all would be lost. It is a fact—however that the name of Jackson was cautiously avoided throughout the appeal; the office-holders having discovered that it is impossible for them to get together a respectable meeting in the city under that name. It is a curious, but at the same time a gratifying state of things: when the most violent advocates of the President abandon the use of his name because of its unpopularity.

AWFUL CONFLAGRATION,

Raleigh, N.C. Sep, 26. We stop the press to announce that our city has been visited by another distressing calamity. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning, a fire broke out at the store of Mr. Richard Smith, which destroyed every building on that square, fronting Fayetville st. with the exception of the Bank of Newbern, which was preserved with great difficulty.

Nearly all the houses burnt were occupied as stores. Most of the dry goods except those in the store of Mr. Richard Smith, were saved; but a large portion of the groceries were destroyed. The books and records of the office of the county Register were consumed.

The fire had attained such mastery before the citizens could be collected, that it was impossible, either by blowing up houses, or the use of our small Engine, to check its progress until every building on the main street, between the corner above mentioned and the Newbern Bank, was entirely destroyed. The Bank itself was only saved by the counsel and intrepidity of a resolute and determined few.

The individual loss is very great—though, by far, the greatest sufferer is Mr. Richard Smith. His loss in money, bonds, goods, and houses cannot be less than $30,000.

Fearful Issue.

Gen. Jackson Versus President Monroe.

General Jackson is again in a fearful dilemma. Our readers will remember something of a famous letter supposed to have been addressed by Johnny Rhea, a member of congress from Tennessee, and said to contain secret instructions from President Monroe, to the General, with regard to the invasion of Florida. It appears from a correspondence between Samuel L. Gouverneur, Esq. of New York, the son in law of Mr. Monroe, and Francis P. Blair, the editor of the Washington Globe, which is published in the N.Y. Courier and Enquirer of Monday last, that no such letter or instructions ever had existence; that the whole story was a base fabrication, invented and published with the object of screening and sustaining Gen. Jackson!

Charles county Md.—We regret to learn says the National Intelligencer, that the Cholera is making dreadful havock on the eastern branch of the Potomac, about twenty miles below Washington. One letter from the neighborhood states it to be fatal in every case.—No premonitory symptoms admonish its approach. Pains, cramps; vomitings, collapse, and death in a hours are its characteristics. A letter from Wm. L. Brent, says. On the plantation adjoining mine, now tenanted by Mr. Philip Steuart, the son of our old friend Gen. Steuart, I am told that the number of persons on the plantation did not exceed eleven out of which eight have died, including Capt. Gibson and Mr. Washington, with the Cholera, and I am informed by one of my servants, this morning that another is at the point of death.

Against Pennsylvania,

The General Government, a session or two ago appropriated a sum of money to improve the steamboat navigation of the Monongahela River, of this sum there is an unexpended balance of 92,000 dolls. By the exertions of the Hon. Andrew Steuart and Hon. T. M. Kennon another appropriation of 50,000 was obtained, to be applied to this improvement by the President. The citizens living on the River being impatient of the delay held a public meeting at Brownsville, Fayette county, and appointed committee to address Gen Jackson on the subject. Gen. Jackson has returned an answer refusing ts carry into execution the act of congress! We have not room to publish this evasive letter at this time, we shall advert to it agasn. The people have had another meeting of nearly 400 persons, many of whom heretofore Jockson men, are now against him. Thus it seems that Jackson neglects no opportunity of opposing the interests of Pennsylvania—

Temperance News.

A gentleman at St, Johns, from Boston mentions that he sat down at a public dinner in company with 60 persons, and "that himself and another gentleman from Halifax, were the only persons who drank ardent spirits at the table,

---

Col. R. M. Jackson made a long speech at a recent Jackson meeting in Harrodsburg, Ky, in the course of which he admitted that the affairs of the United States Bank had been well managed, and the Bank was entirely solvent, that the charges of partiality and corruption gainst it, were unfounded for he knew of his own knowledge the Bank had acted with equal favour to both parties: that it had been of benefit to the country & it would produce great distress to wind up its concerns at this time.

A Change.

The Philadelphia Gazette yesterday hoisted the Clay and Sergeant flag, and placed the whole of the Anti Jackson ticket, for city and county, in their columns. This is as it should be. We wish its publisher joy and success. Both editor and publisher know, that whether opposed to us or with us on politics, we desire their good, but there is warmer feeling when we find them leaving the wrong side, and confessing that it is no longer tenable.

The Auburn Republican has the following laconic but expressive comment upon Andrew Jackson's avowal that the influence of the general government ought not to be brought in conflict with the freedom of election:—Auburn Post Office, Sept. 20, 11 1-2 lbs of Extra Globes, franked arrived safe.

A clergyman in Boston advertises for a wife. He is himself a pretty good looking bachelor; and wishes for a wife neither old nor ugly. He says nothing about money—but he will scarcely succeed as he expressly refuses negotiating with widows. He "receives not: because he asketh a-miss."

---

A friend has received a letter from Burlington, N. J, which says,—"That the Jackson men in Burlington county met on Monday last, and after completing their assembly ticket, they called on the gentleman first named to obtain his sanction—he informed them he had changed his views of matters and things, and should support those men, who would support the constitution and laws. Up to Friday morning they had not been able to get a name strong enough to head their ticket.

In Gloucester county the Jackson men have had three meetings last week to form a ticket, and could not agree upon one.

DEATHS.

In Centreville on Monday last of the prevailing epidemick, Mr. WM. FALLOWFIELD—He was an old soldier of the Cross—and died fully resigned with a hope of the saving grace of Christ.

Died of cholera in this place on Tuesday the 2d inst. Mr. William Meconnekin in the 39th year of his age after an illness of nearly four days. Brother Meconnekin had been a useful member of the Methodist E. church for 12 years and was always found walking worthy of the vocation wherewith he was called as a citizen unanimously respected—as a member of our church beloved by all. A tender and affectionate husband, and an indulgent parent, and a kind neighbour. During his illness he had full resignation to the will of God though it was one of the most painful in its nature, yet he bore it with all patience and continued praising God for what he had done for his soul. The writer was with him during his illness and asked him if he had a hope of heaven, he answered, yes, O yes, I soon shall be there. A few minutes before he died one of his friends said to him, it is a lonesome valley to pass through, he answered, yes, but I have company Jesus my friend is with me. Halelujah. He then repeated the verse.

Jesus can make a dying bed
Feel soft as downy pillows are &c.

When his speech had almost left him, but in his perfect senses, he exclaimed glory, glory, glory, and with his last breath said,

O the transporting rapturous scene
That rises to my sight,
Sweet fields arrayed in living green
And rivers of delight.

Much more he said, and much more we could say if it was necessary. He has left a wife and five children and a large circle of friends to mourn their loss—

Communicated.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER.

She rose from her delicious sleep
And put away her soft brown hair,
And in a tone as low and deep
As love's first whisper, breathed prayer—
Her snow white hands together prest,
Her blue eyes sheltered the lid,
The folded linen on her breast,
Just swelling with the charms it hid—
And from her long and flowing dress,
Escaped a bare and snowy foot,
Whose step upon the earth did press
Like a new snow flake, white and mute
And there, from slumber soft and warm
Like a young spirit fresh from heaven
She bowed that slight and mathless form,
And humbly prayed to be forgiven.

O God if souls as unsoiled as these
Need daily mercy from thy throne—
If she upon her bended knees,
Our loveliest and our purest one.
She with a face so clear and bright
We deem her some sweet child of light
If she, with those soft eyes in tears,
Day after day in her young years,
Must kneel and pray for grace from thee
What far, far deeper need have we!
How hardly, if she win not heaven,
Will our wild errors be forgiven!

Obituary. The unfortunate Calvin Edson is no longer a Living Skeleton. Dr. Scudder, of the American Museum has received information of his death, at his residence in Randolph Vermont, the mysterious cause of excessive emaciation has it is said been at length solved. The disease of which he died was Tabes Mesenterica, Tape Worm. The worm is said to have been twelve or fourteen feet in length. If this be so, the mystery of the enormous apetite of the deceased, is likewise solved.

He should have taken a bottle of Swaims Vermifuge.
