I am in political alliance infuse a national spirit into all that proceeds from them. Refraining from, nay disdaining the paltry artifices of appeal to supposed prejudices, or resorts of unworthy ambition, I trust that they will take counsel of wisdom and patriotism alone to direct them in a true American cause.

Let each man honestly regard his own advancement to office or trust as the last object of his consideration—let each man generously discard all personal prejudices, all personal hostilities to his adversaries, steadily adhering to principles that are approved and to men that are upright, and we shall bring about a state of things most propitious to liberty, to national happiness, and union. There is a growing intelligence among the great body of the people of our country (the result no doubt of the wider spread of education) that will sustain such exertions. Where popular opinion is the sovereign no work of wisdom can be stable without the universal diffusion of knowledge through the means of education. for with an untutored people he who decks Vice and Folly in fascinating attire, and recommends them will be as likely to succeed as he who sets forth Virtue and Wisdom in the simpler garb of truth. To enlighten mankind is to serve the cause of truth and wisdom.

Believing these to be the ends and aim of our political friends, my best wishes wait on them, regarding their success as one of the means most promotive of the real grandeur of the nation and of the general prosperity of the People,

With every consideration, I am faithfully, Yours,

ROB'T. H. GOLDSBOROUGH.

Marriages.

On Thursday evening last, by the Rev. Mr. McKee, Mr. THOMAS FLOYD to Miss LOUISA WHITBY, all of Talbot county.

DEATHS,

In Centreville, on Sunday last, Miss MARY ELIZABETH, elder daughter of Colonel John Tilghman.

There is something so solemn, so awful in death, that the heart really falls back in horror upon itself and sickens with dread when it contemplates it—true, the religion which Christ left as a bequest to man, is the only sweet, the only solace in the hour of gloom, & it is well that, there is an alleviating hope amid so cheerless a scene. Nature, animated as it is, in all its process, shows that all, all tend to decay under heaven—so that we are in a measure prepared for our dissolution when all the fires of life, in the yellow leaf, decay—yet the death of the lovely, the interesting youth carries a dread, a sorrow, a deep, unearthly throb thro'and thro the heart; and leaves there an aching, corroding sting.

Miss T. was a young lady calculated to call up all the admiration of our hearts—docile, intelligent by nature, and ingeniously improved by education, and science, there were none who were not willing to pay homage at her shrine. Possessing a soul overflowing with affection and reverence to her parents, and a paternal feeling of love to her younger sister, and brothers, she had built up in their hearts a feeling of sacred devotion, that cheerfully and devoutly paid homage to so much virtue and kindness.—And still, all these tender chords of love must be wrung; and death, as tho' eager for the fairest victims, must crush this sweet flower in all its beauty—yet, she died not without hope—a hope in Christ, and thus is left a balm, to her friends, to pour into their sad and wounded hearts.

In Centreville on Monday night last, after one or two days illness, Mr. THOMAS R. CARVILL, merchant.

A long obituary could not convey a truer picture of our young friend's character, than to say he was in its most extended sense an affectionate son and brother—a fond and devoted husband, a kind master and an obliging, worthy neighbor—perhaps none were his enemies, for his deportment was exceedingly conciliatory and winning to all.—His friends have abundant cause for hope too, that he felt the pardoning grace of God in his heart, ere he died, and that he now rests with that Jesus, whose mercy and goodness he was so frequently called to admire and praise.

In Easton on the same day, Mr, JOHN LARRIMORE, son of Thomas Larrimore.

In Easton on Thursday last, Mrs. ROSZELL, at an advanced age.

In the village of Greensborough, Caroline county, on the 6th inst. after a short but severe illness, Mr. JOHN H. MOCHLEN, aged 23 years and 3 months. A devoted christain his end, as might have been expected, was peaceful and triumphant.

He rests in Jesus and is blest,
How kind his slumbers are;
From suffering and from pain released,
And freed from every snare.

In Easton on Wednesday last, Mr. PHILIP LUFT.
