

supposed that Daniel Ellis did the deed. A year or two since the selection of Whately, entered a complaint against Ellis as being a spendthrift. Mr. Stockbridge was appointed his Guardian. Ellis it is said swore revenge against Mr. S. When the fire was first discovered, Ellis was seen about 30 rods from the barn and running from it. He was immediately arrested, and on Wednesday was committed to the goal in this town.

Yesterday morning Ellis was found by the Goaler suspended by a handkerchief to one of the grates in his room, cold and lifeless. Reader do you ask for the cause of all this; the answer is ready, Rum! was the procuring cause. Rum! produced these horrid acts.

Maternal Affection.—During the prevalence of a contagious fever in Ireland, a poor, houseless woman and her little son five years old, being unable to obtain shelter, and night coming on, were compelled to lie down under a car, in a gavel pit. It was the first of January, and excessively cold. The affectionate mother took off her own flannel coat, wrapped it round the little object of her care, put him in her bosom, and laid down and died. In the morning a man passing, inquired how she was. The child replied, she had fallen asleep, and he could not wake her. Such was the power of a mother's love—the life of her child was dearer than her own.

SATURDAY EVENING, NOV. 15,
ELECTORAL ELECTIONS,
In Maryland.

WE HAVE MET THE ENEMY.
And the result has been just as we predicted—Success has crowned our efforts. And we may be permitted to rejoice at our triumph as a Party and the success of a friend. The following is the result—

BALTIMORE CITY.
Adams, Jackson,
Stewart, 4314 | J. S. Sellman, 4883
Boyle, 4315 | Howard, 4782
The City of Baltimore, Annapolis, and Anne Arundel County form one District, which is entitled to two Electors; accounts received give the Jackson ticket, a majority; we are not able to state the number.

CECIL COUNTY.
Sewall, 1041 | Forman, 1118
HARFORD COUNTY.
Sewall, 1201 | Forman, 1095
In this District it will be seen the Adams Elector has received 29 votes majority.

WORCESTER, SOMERSET, and part of DORCHESTER COUNTY, are said to have returned an Adams Elector.

Our Friends may rest assured of the success of our Party in Ohio. The Jackson Party hereabouts have been most egregiously imposed upon. Ohio is as certain for Adams as Massachusetts is.

VIRGINIA.
The returns of the elections in Virginia have not all been received by us; about 60 counties have been heard from, which give Jackson several thousand majority. We consider Virginia certainly as disputable ground; it may go for the Hero, but there is certainly strong doubt about it.

NEW PAPER.
We have received the two first numbers of a new paper called the Delaware Register and Farmer's, Manufacturer's & Mechanic's Advocate, published at Wilmington, (Del.) by Messrs. Wilson, already favorably known to the public as late Editors of the Del. Watchman. The Register contains some excellent miscellaneous information, and promises to be a useful paper. It is neatly printed. We heartily wish the Editors success in their undertaking.

We are still left in extreme doubt & anxiety respecting the New York election. Both sides claim a majority of the districts which remain to be heard from. The N. Y. American, an Administration paper holds the following language—"We shall not be surprised if each party obtain seventeen votes." We are still inclined to believe after comparing the different accounts, that we shall obtain 20 votes, and perhaps 22.

Jersey has done nobly, she has elected her Electors by an increased majority of about 1000. Del. Jour.

From the best information received we are of opinion that Gen. Jackson has got but 3 electoral votes in Maryland. This number we always conceded to him. His election at this time appears more doubtful than ever. Our friends must keep in good spirits.

General Jackson will never be President of the United States. The last accounts from a Georgia state explicitly that such is the condition of the parties in that state, that no election will be made by the people. The electors must have a majority of the whole number.

"We put it down as decisive that the people will not elect."

A majority of the Legislature are Crawfordites; and they never will consent to vote in favor of Gen. Jackson.

In this state of things it is not possible that Gen. Jackson can ever be elected President.

Extract of a letter from Carthage, dated October 10th.
"There has been the devil to play in Bogota: an attempt was made to assassinate the President at midnight, on the 25th ult but he escaped and was most miraculously saved. Santander and Padilla are at the head of this conspiracy. They, with many others, are in prison, and will be shot."—L. b.

HIGHLY INTERESTING FROM COLOMBIA.

"A revolution broke out in Bogota, on the morning of the 20th ultimo. The artillery to a man, headed by an immense number of people in Bogota, many of whom were highly respectable, on that night, intent upon the murder of the Liberator and all his friends.—One party marched to Bargas barracks, and fired upon the soldiers with cannon; and a second party marched to the Granderos barracks, and a third to the palace. The guard at the latter place was surprised and easily routed. Bolivar made his escape by a back window, and being followed by some armed men, he got under a bridge, where he remained up to the middle in water till he had passed. It was lucky for him, as it was the artillery crying out, "Muerte al tirano Bolivar!" Hearing the cry of "Viva el Libertador," in the square, he ran there and found it occupied by his friends, the Voljas. Col. Ferguson was shot through the heart, in attempting to repel the attack made by the assailants on the palace. Col. Bolivar, (who was guard over Gen. Padilla) was murdered in the same way by a party who broke into the house where he was.

"The bait held out to the soldiers who were of this faction, was the plunder of the British house if they succeeded."
"Bolivar has rewarded the regiment which defended the palace, and dispersed the conspirators, by giving them 20,000 dollars, and promoting their commander (Lieut. Col. Whittle, one of his aids) to a full Colonel.

"We understand that six of the principal conspirators have been shot, and many more are likely to share the same fate."

The French system of Divorce.—If either the man or woman wish to be divorced, they must give notice of it to the Prefect, and six months time is necessary before it takes place; in the interim, the necessary arrangements for the maintenance of the children are made, which are as follows: The girls are generally consigned to the care of the mother, and the boys to the father; a very minute investigation takes place of the father's or mother's fortune, so that the children are certain of being provided for. If a man is rich, and is the party that sues for the divorce, he must return half of his wife's jointure, and settle a maintenance on her for life. If a woman sues for divorce, the wife must return every article of present she has received from her husband, even before marriage. The woman is not compelled, however, to maintain her husband after divorce, but must her children. If the father re-marries, and has heirs by his last marriage, the children by the former wife have the same claims to the patrimony as the others.

Female Bazaars.—Among the curious institutions in Paris is an establishment by a marriage negotiator, by means of which persons who are seeking for wives are enabled to view all the females upon his list, who are placed in different rooms, with glazed doors, so classed as to give an easy reference to the particulars on his books, as to their ages, fortunes and qualifications. When the inspector is satisfied with these particulars, and with their personal appearance, an interview takes place, and the bargain is struck.

Turkish Women, and the mode of Purchasing them.

[Translated from a new French Periodical for the Irish Shield.]
At the present moment, when the eyes of all the world are fixed on the struggle between Russia and Turkey, the following observation, of a French Traveller, on the wretched condition of the female sex, in those eastern countries, subject to the barbarous sway of Mahometanism, may have some interest for the readers of the Shield. The hapless fate of oriental females has been often the subject of commiseration with the enlightened and generous mind. How often must the poor oriental females, view this land of liberty, with an envious eye, where the talents and virtues of the fair sex are justly appreciated, and where they sustain their proper rank in the scale of society—where

"Generous love and reason jointly reign,
And sense and virtue rivet beauty's chain:
Nor guards nor bolts, their wavering faith secure,
But love that formed the vow, preserves it pure."

"The European, says the French writer, familiarized with the idea of the natural equality of the sexes, beholds with pity the miserable situation of the fairest portion of creation, throughout the Turkish empire, and almost the whole continent of Asia—he sees them degraded from being the associates of man, the charmers of his deliriums, and the ornaments of the social circle, to the rank of mere creatures of his will, and the slaves of his passion. Controlled in all their inclinations, restrained in all their actions, watched over with indelicate observance, and forcibly compelled to regulate their lives and conduct so as to obtain the partial, and slightly determined favour of a boorish, imperious, and perhaps, detested master; exposed to insult and caprice to the rage and torment of desire—in some instances torn from the arms of their weeping parents, from the care of their guardians, and solitudes of the friends of their youth;—cut off from hopes innocently but imprudently indulged, exposed to sale like the inferior classes of animals, and fluctuating to the lawless will of their lord, between the situation of his servants, or his mistress.

The condition of women, even in the married state, exhibited in the most favorable point of view cannot approach conjugal happiness, they are the slaves of despots, who are strangers to all the noble affections of the heart. The wife cannot be seen abroad with her husband, nor he remain constantly at home with her. Shut up in the stave, disgusted with its unvaried scene, without knowledge of literature, or the arts, she has no relief but in the duties of her household and family. She can have no pleasure even in adorning her person with diamonds, or shining silks, since however embellished by the grace of dress, it can excite no other passion than envy in female bosoms.

The Turkish women are beautiful, though their beauty is of a different character from that of European females. Their eyes are blue and bland, their hair luxuriant, their faces fresh and rosy, and their persons though too corpulent (a perfection in the opinion of a Turk) possess great symmetry of proportion.

I accompanied a German Merchant, at Raffi, in the Crimea to the mart of Slaves, where an Armenian, had exposed to sale two Circassian girls of the most exquisite loveliness. We feigned an intention of purchasing them, in order to gratify our curiosity, and ascertain the mode of conducting such inhuman sales. The maidens were introduced to us one after another. Their deportment was graceful and modest to diffidence.—The first girl, presented, was in her fourteenth year; she was elegantly dressed, her face was covered with a veil, through which her blue eyes, as well as neck and shoulders, that rivalled the parian marble in whiteness, shone like stars piercing through a black cloud.—She advanced towards the German, bowed down, and kissed his hand; then, at the command of her master, she walked backwards and forward to show her fine shape. When she took off her veil, our eyes were dazzled with a dimpled face, in which was blooming youthfulness; her air was at once noble and modest, her gestures animating and dignified. Her tresses, as black as ebony, fell carelessly over her lovely breast, and when she smiled she discovered teeth of a dazzling whiteness and enamel.

She rubbed her cheeks with a wet napkin to prove that she had not used art to improve or heighten the bloom of her complexion. We were permitted to feel her pulse that we might be convinced of the good state of her health, and constitution. She then retired, with all the agility and grace of one of Diana's nymphs coming out of the fountain. Her attractive charms won the heart of my German friend, who purchased this lovely girl for four thousand piasters."
